

Meredith H. Kruse, MSc, MPH
Brazil

Meredith is an interdisciplinary global health professional and Project Analyst with Oncoguia, an internationally recognized cancer advocacy organization in Brazil where she supports the Patient Navigation Program. She has expertise in research, community-based programs, and advocacy with extensive experience developing, implementing, and providing technical support to global health research for change and program interventions to improve cancer prevention, screening, diagnosis, access, and adherence to treatment.

